Dar es Salaam : Mkuki na Nyota Publishers Ltd., 2017. - xiii, 126 p.

ISBN: 9789987753451.

Related Subjects: Rubagumya, Casmir M., 1946- | Biographies | Education | childhood | Refugees | learning | universities | college management | Tanzania | autobiographies | college administrators

Abstract : A Son of Two Countries is a story of struggle for education. Born in 1946 in Rwanda under Belgian colonial rule, the author recounts his early education in Rwanda and later as a refugee in Tanzania. He was naturalized as a Tanzanian citizen in 1980 while doing his undergraduate studies at the University of Dar es Salaam. As he struggled to get education, the author was also grappling with his refugee status, with all the challenges that it entailed.

The book gives insights into the contradictions of colonial and post-colonial education, as well as the author's reflections on education in Tanzania, given his long experience in the education sector in that country. Finally, we get some glimpses into the dual identity of the author as a Tanzanian citizen of Rwandan origin and how this shaped his relationship with the two countries he calls home. As he aptly puts it, "Rwanda gave me my heart; Tanzania gave me my brain. I find it difficult to choose between my heart and my brain."

Description : Abdilatif Abdalla: Poet in Politics -celebrates the work of Abdilatif Abdalla, one of Kenya's most well-known poets and a committed political activist. It includes commentary essays on aspects of Abdilatif Abdalla's work and life, through inter-weaving perspectives on poetry and politics, language and history; with contributions by East African writers and scholars of Swahili literature, including Ngugi wa Thiong'o, Said Khamis, Ken Walibora, Ahmed Rajab, Mohamed Bakari, and Sheikh Abdilahi Nassir, among others. Abdalla became famous in 1973, with the publication of Sauti ya Dhiki (Voice of Agony), a collection of poems written secretly in prison during three years of solitary confinement (1969-72). He was convicted of circulating pamphlets against Jomo Kenyatta's KANU government, criticizing it as 'dictatorial' and calling for political resistance in the pamphlet, 'Kenya: Twendapi?' (Kenya: where are we heading?). His poetry epitomizes the ongoing currency of classic Swahili form and language, while his work overall, including translations and editorships, exemplifies a two-way mediation between 'traditional' and 'modern' perspectives. It makes old and new voices of Swahili poetry and African literature accessible to a wider readership in East Africa, and beyond. Abdalla has lived in exile since 1973, in Tanzania, London, and subsequently, until now, in Germany. Nevertheless, Swahili literature and Kenyan politics have remained central to his life.

The three-day conference dubbed, Africa at a Crossroads: Future prospects for Africa after 50 years of the Organisation of African Unity/African Union, voiced young graduates and scholars' views on Africa's future and developmental breakthroughs, as well as its challenges and opportunities. While the annual conference is a capacity building platform for young scientists, it provided a platform for participants to engage in critical dialogue about the African realities and possible, plausible and desirable future for the continent. The book thus provides a critical interrogation of the drivers of change in Africa moving forward, especially as the AU was busy churning out new ideas and mapping out a new vision for the next 50 years. Essentially the book provides insights on national systems of innovation, matrices on poverty, climate change and lastly a reflection on Africa's position in global governance.

8. At the foot of the volcano: reflections on teaching at a South African university

Cape Town: BestRed, HSRC, 2018.-154 p.

ISBN: 9781928246190.

Related Subjects: teaching | educational sciences | higher education | universities | teaching methods | learning | lectures | inspiration | teaching styles

Abstract : At a time of robust public contestation about higher education in South Africa, At the Foot of the Volcano focuses on the personal journeys of university lecturers as ordinary people. The lecturers, based predominantly at the University of Cape Town, share a passion for inspiring South Africa's next generation of scientists, health care workers, social scientists, poets, essayists, musicians, urban planners, anthropologists and chemists. Too often Information and Communication Technology is offered as the panacea for course content in uncertain times. At the Foot of the Volcano suggests that no amount of technological innovation can stand in the place of building relationships with students, finding ways to instil passion for our disciplines, and an awareness of the sources of structural inequality that underpin the current political climate across higher institutions.

9. Belt and road initiative: alternative development path for Africa

SIMELANE, Thokozani, ed; MANAGA, Lavhelesani; eds.

Related Subjects: International Cooperation | development plan | China | Africa | infrastructure development | Africa-China relations | transnational infrastructure | agricultural cooperation | Africa's agenda 2063 | China's belt and road initiative.

Abstract : China's emphasis on infrastructure development has received support from African leaders. Its focus on infrastructure development in Africa was endorsed by the signing of a Memorandum of Understanding between China and the African Union on 27 January 2015. The agreement outlines plans for connecting African countries through transportation infrastructure projects, including modern highways, airports, and high speed railways. At the heart of Belt and Road Initiative lies the creation of an economic land belt that includes countries on the original Silk Road through Central Asia, the Middle East and Europe, as well as a maritime "road" that links China's port facilities with the African coast, pushing up through the Suez Canal into the Mediterranean. China has from the outset emphasised that the Belt and Road Initiative will be developed within the framework of the five principles.

These entails mutual respect for each other's territorial integrity and sovereignty; non-aggression; non-interference in each other's internal affairs; equality and mutual benefit; and peaceful coexistence.

This volume provides an analysis of this stance by both African and Chinese scholars. Africa through its Agenda 2063 has been driving, among others, the re-industrialisation of its economies, improved connectivity and infrastructure development, diversification of energy sources, technology transfer and skills development. The Belt and Road Initiative provides an alternative path for Africa to realise some of these milestones.

Abstract : Nanotechnology is sweeping the world. This science of very small particles, which includes genetic modification and the reconfiguring of the arrangement of atoms, presents possibilities beyond imagination. It also has huge implications for all South Africans, especially at home. How exactly is this new technology playing out in South Africa ? In countries like India, nanotechnology is being supported as a source of income and innovation. It has the potential to improve both the human condition and a country's productivity and competitiveness. Is South Africa doing what it should and could to foster nanotechnology and biotechnology, and to advance bioeconomies within the country ? And what does the new technology mean for us as consumers ? How many of us know that this technology is already being employed in substances like suntan cream and lipstick, with potential health implications for users ? The application of nanotechnology poses risks as well as huge benefits, so we need to be particularly vigilant of the ethics and dangers of it. This book provokes discussion around these important topics and relays eyeopening information to those of us who thought all of this was sci-fi.

Abstract : As humanity enters the Anthropocene epoch the oceans are more at risk than ever before as a result of the increased exploitation of its resources. The Indian Ocean is the third largest ocean in the world comprising 20% of the water on the Earth's surface. The sea lanes in the Indian Ocean are among the busiest in the world with more than 80 percent of global seaborne trade in oil transiting through the Indian Ocean and its vital chokepoints and an estimated 40% of the world's offshore oil production comes from the Indian Ocean. The importance of this region cannot be underestimated and there is no doubt that there are many opportunities for economic growth and job creation presented by the waters washing the shores of the Indian Ocean Rim. In order to ensure a desirable future for humanity it is necessary to make use of the ocean's resources in a sustainable and responsible manner. Climate change is affecting the Indian Ocean negatively, placing a strain on the ability to ensure food security and damaging the economies of small island states that depend on fisheries and aquaculture for their livelihoods. Increasing ocean temperatures and ocean acidification are taking a toll on ecosystems.

This book is the first of its kind, providing fresh insights into the various aspects and impacts of the Blue Economy in the Indian Ocean Region: from shifting paradigms, to an accounting framework, gender dynamics, the law of the sea and renewable energy, this handbook aims at increasing awareness of the Blue Economy in the Indian Ocean Region and to provide evidence to policy-makers in the region to make informed decisions. The contributions are from a mixture of disciplines by scholars and experts from seven count

12. Care in context: transnational gender perspectives

Related Subjects: Quality of Life | gender equality | social justice | prenatal care | Child Welfare | gender relations | care | gender inequality | care policy | social cohesion | health care

Abstract : Care in context is a thought-provoking book that looks at gender inequalities in the context of care. Drawing in part from unique transnational perspectives and gripping interviews, this book focuses on key questions that intellectuals, policy makers and all of us who care and need care have to ask, such as: What is good care? Who should be involved in providing it? And how should care be arranged and organized so that the interests of both care givers and care recipients are equally provided for? Care is indispensable to human flourishing. Without it we cannot survive. It is vital to the development of all individuals and to that of the broader society. Increasing economic and health problems have also contributed to mounting care crises in different parts of the world. With this view, the book offers fresh and nuanced perspectives and is a definite must read for all those affected by issues of care.

16. Claude E. Ake: the making of an organic intellectual

AROWOSEGBE, Jeremiah O.
Grahamstown : African Humanities Program, NISC 2019. - xii-210 p. (African Humanities Series)
ISBN: 9781920033538; 9781920033545 (pdf); 9781920033552.

Related Subjects: Ake, Claude E. 1939-1996 | intellectuals | Philosophy | political science | Political Theory | Biographies | Africa | political thought | African intellectual history | African studies

Abstract : Claude E. Ake, radical African political philosopher of the first four decades of the postcolonial era, stands out as a progressive social force whose writings continue to have appeal and relevance long after his untimely death in 1996. In examining Ake's intellectual works, Jeremiah O. Arowosegbe sets out the framework of his theoretical orientations in the context of his life, and reveals him as one of the most fertile and influential voices within the social sciences community in Africa.

In tracing the genesis and development of Ake's political thought, Arowosegbe draws attention to Ake's compelling account of the material implications and political costs of European colonisation of Africa and his conception of a different future for the continent. Approaching his subject from a Gramscian and Marxist perspective, Arowosegbe elucidates how Ake's philosophy demonstrates the intimate entanglement of class and social, cultural and historical issues, and how, as a contributor to endogenous knowledge production and postcolonial studies on Africa, Ake is firmly rooted in a South-driven critique of Western historicism.

It is Arowosegbe's conviction that engaged scholars are uniquely important in challenging existing hierarchies, oppressive institutions, and truth regimes - and the structures of power that produce and support them; and much can be drawn from their contributions and failings alike. This work contributes to a hitherto neglected focus area: the impact across the continent of the ideas and lives of African and other global South academics, intellectuals and scholar-activists. Among them, Ake is representative of bold scholarly initiatives in asserting the identities of African and other non-Western cultures through a mindful rewriting of the intellectual and nationalist histories of these societies on their own terms. In foregrounding the contribution of Ake with respect to both autochthonous traditional insights and endogenous knowledge production on the continent, Arowosegbe aims at fostering the continuance of a living and potent tradition of critique and resistance.

Engaging with the lingering impact of colonialism on previously colonised societies, this timely book will be of immense value to scholars and students of philosophy and political science as well as African intellectual history, African studies, postcolonial studies and subaltern studies.

17. Connectedness in evolution: the discourse of modernity on the ecosophy of the Haya People in Tanzania

KAMANZI, Adalbertus.
Pretoria : Africa Institute of South Africa, 2014. 88 p.
ISBN: 9780798304313.

Related Subjects: environmental degradation | modernization | climate change | philosophy | ecology | case studies | Tanzania | nature | human beings | modernity | ecosophy | technology development | Haya People

Abstract : This monograph is predicated on a combative decolonial-Afrocentric ecophilosophy of science of nature and humanity. It is rigorous and comprehensive scholarly account of how nature has been colonised and turned into a natural resource available for the Cartesian subject in charge of the capitalist system to humanity's ad infinitum exploitation, with serious consequences for sustainable developmentalism.

There is no doubt that this ground-breaking monograph will challenge scholars and irritate new critical thinking on developmentalism, which takes into account the threat of human activity on nature, the environment and ecology. It is a bold presentation of thoughts that will provoke other researches.

Away from the tempting positionality of degenerating into nostalgic and romantic traditionalism versus fast-lane modernism, the author consistently problematises the complex issues through deployment of multidimensional thinking, the relationship between human beings and nature, and how technology, development (in the colonial sense) and colonial expansionism have objectified nature, sucked it dry of its content, and reduced it to the status of raw material for the production of man's success.

18. Consensus as democracy in Africa

MATOLINO, Bernard.

First edition.

Grahamstown, South Africa : AHP Publications, 2018. xii-227 p. (African humanities series). ISBN: 9781920033316.

Related Subjects: Democracy | political parties | Africa Politics and government 21st century | consensus (social sciences) | majoritarianism

Abstract : Some philosophers on the African continent and beyond are convinced that consensus, as a polity, represents the best chance for Africa to fully democratise. In Consensus as Democracy in Africa, Bernard Matolino challenges the basic assumptions built into consensus as a social and political theory. Central to his challenge to the claimed viability of consensus as a democratic system are three major questions: Is consensus genuinely superior to its majoritarian counterpart? Is consensus itself truly a democratic system? Is consensus sufficiently different from the one-party system? In taking up these issues and others closely associated with them, Matolino shows that consensus as a system of democracy encounters several challenges that make its viability highly doubtful. Matolino then attempts a combination of an understanding of an authentic mode of democracy with African reality to work out what a more desirable polity would be for the continent.

Montréal : Les éditions Afrikana, 2018. - 238 p.

ISBN: 9782924928035.

Related Subjects: islam | diplomatie | géopolitique | Senegal | islam politique | confréries | réformisme | militantisme islamique | diplomaties religieuses | contestations islamisées

Résumé : Le Sénégal vit le paradoxe géopolitique d'être, à la fois, le continuum et la profondeur subsaharienne du monde arabo-musulman et un partenaire stratégique traditionnel des puissances occidentales. Pénétré depuis longtemps par les courants idéologiques qui alimentent l'islam politique, il demeure, pour l'heure, un « îlot de stabilité dans un océan d'instabilité » au cœur des évolutions politico-sécuritaires en Afrique de l'Ouest et au

Sahel, où ces mêmes puissances occidentales et celles du Golfe arabo-persique sont en quête effrénée d'oasis d'influence. Les contestations politiques islamisées ainsi que les vieilles revendications pour la reconnaissance de la part d'arabophonie d'un pays-symbole de la Francophonie sont au cœur de ce livre mettant à nu les vulnérabilités sociopolitiques d'un Sénégal, souvent occultées, faisant face à une lutte des élites à socialisations contradictoires. Bakary Sambe brosse dans ce livre une analyse fouillée de ces brûlantes questions, dans un contexte où la situation sécuritaire tendue, la montée des extrémismes et des périls liés au terrorisme transnational, imposent, paradoxalement, aux Etats « laïques » de la région et d'ailleurs, une gestion du religieux à laquelle ils ne s'étaient pas préparés. Cet ouvrage de l'un des plus éminents spécialistes contemporains de l'islam au Sud du Sahara, emprunte un style libéré des « paradigmes dominants » et une approche novatrice par son interdisciplinarité pour décrypter et analyser les stratégies d'influence des pays arabes comme occidentaux se servant du religieux en levier d'influence afin de peser sur l'orientation des politiques publiques et de la diplomatie.

Abstract : Contested Ecologies: Reimagining the Nature-culture Divide in the Global South offers an intervention in the conversations on ecology and on coloniality, and on the ways in which modern thinking, with its bifurcation of nature and culture, constitutes 'ecology' within a very particular politics of the cosmos. The chapters in this collection contest the framework of knowledge that has deadlocked nature and culture, tradition and modernity, scientific and indigenous and in doing so makes a case for the value of rethinking knowledge beyond the nature-culture divide.

Publication: Cape Town, South Africa : HSRC Press, 2012. - xxv-286 p.

Related Subjects: crisis | Democracy | Governance | informal economy | urban development | Zimbabwe -- Politics and government -- Social conditions -- Economic conditions -- 1980-

Abstract: Crisis! What Crisis! The Multiple Dimensions of the Zimbabwean Crisis argues that the Zimbabwean crisis is in fact a series of crises. From infrastructural problems and disease to a depreciating currency and an increasing muscular militarism, the citizens of Zimbabwe have faced an ongoing struggle to survive. The book explores the resilience of a people as they navigate the multiple challenges they face in the country of their birth. In an inter-disciplinary approach, the authors of Crisis! What Crisis! engage with issues as diverse as resource politics and livelihoods, migration and disembedding, language, and humour to demonstrate the ingenious ways in which citizens mediate the crisis. Topically, the book explores how social media offers a subversive space that flies in the face of increasing restrictions placed on conventional media within Zimbabwe and the governments aggressive efforts to suppress freedom of speech and spread their nationalist agenda. The book concludes with a sobering reflection on the past and what the future might hold.

Abstract : In African countries there has been a surge of intellectual interest in foregrounding ideas and thinkers of African origin—in philosophy as in other disciplines—that have been unjustly ignored or marginalized. African scholars have demonstrated that precolonial African cultures generated ideas and arguments which were at once truly philosophical and distinctively African, and several contemporary African thinkers are now established figures in the philosophical mainstream. Yet, despite the universality of its themes, relevant contributions from African philosophy have rarely permeated global philosophical debates. Critical intellectual excavation has also tended to prioritize precolonial thought, overlooking more recent sources of home-grown philosophical thinking such as Africa's intellectually rich liberation movements.

This book demonstrates the potential for constructive interchange between currents of thought from African philosophy and other intellectual currents within philosophy.

Showing how foregrounding Africa—its ideas, thinkers and problems—can help with the project of renewing and improving the discipline of philosophy worldwide, this book will stimulate and challenge everyone with an interest in philosophy, and is essential reading for upper-level undergraduate students, postgraduate students and scholars of African and Africana philosophy.

Abstract : From 1910 to the 1930s, educating Africans was a major preoccupation in the metropole and in the colonies of imperial Britain. This richly researched book untangles the discourse on education for African leaders, which involved diverse actors such as colonial officials, missionaries, European and American educationists or ideologues in Africa and diaspora. The analysis is presented around two foci of decision-making: one is the Memorandum on Education Policy in British Tropical Africa, issued by the British Colonial Office in 1923; another is the Achimota School established on the Gold Coast Colony (present-day Ghana) as a model school in 1927. Ideas brought from different sources were mingled and converged on the areas where the motivations of actors have coincided. The local and the global was linked through the chains of discourse, interacting with global economic, political and social concerns. The book also vividly describes how the ideals of colonial education were realized in Achimota School.

Abstract : The Namibian constitution makes full provision for education as a fundamental human right and freedom. Three years into independence, as part of the government's educational policy, the 'Education for All Policy' was launched as a stepping stone to free quality education. However, inequities have become widely pronounced within the Namibian educational system. Democracy and Education in Namibia and beyond debates the education–democracy nexus in Namibia and the southern African context. It defines and explores the meaning of democracy and related concepts. It also looks at what democracy means in the context of human rights and access to education. The ten chapters in this collection interrogate the strengths and limitations of education as an instrument of social change and question whether or not the Namibian educational objectives and practices do develop and help to sustain a democratic culture in Namibia. The authors in the collection have drawn material from their own teaching and research experience across the fields of education and social science in Namibia and beyond, and present their findings in a pedagogical framework suitable as a challenging text for tertiary students. At a time when education is in crisis, especially in South Africa where strident calls for free tertiary education and Africanisation of the curriculum are spreading like wildfire, this book gives scholarly insight into the history and social conditions that gave rise to our current predicament.

Abstract : This book provides an analysis of the ecological conditions and ecosystem goods and services of the Zambezi River Basin (ZRB), the fourth largest river in Africa. Various environmental and anthropogenic factors ; inclusive of climate, environmental flows, hydrology, morphology, pollution and land use changes among others and their interactions are considered as drivers of the river ecosystems. The impacts of these drivers on aquatic biota, river ecological integrity, and the livelihoods of surrounding communities are analysed within the socio-economic-policy context. The book goes beyond the usual inventories and basic research by using the comparative research method (CRM) in a trans-disciplinary manner. This CRM analytical approach in this book seeks to interrogate the differences or similarities in socio-economic systems, livelihoods, ecological systems, ecosystem goods and services, their usage and management under the seemingly different cultural, socio-economic conditions expected across borders that are within the ZRB. The multidisciplinary approach also connects the typical ecological research with social dimensions in a holistic manner. The book therefore, provides empirical and research based evidence to support strategic planning and policy development in the wake of ecological changes that nations and indeed regions such as the ZRB are grappling with while seeking to sustainably manage precious river systems.

Résumé : De toute évidence la littérature féminine ne cesse de prendre de l'ampleur et de se déployer dans le champ métaphorique, au Maghreb et ailleurs, par la multitude et la diversité de sa production. Alors que dire de cette littérature ? Sinon qu'elle prend de plus en plus une place non négligeable dans les sociétés maghrébines par le nombre roissant d'écrivaines qui envahissent la sphère littéraire. Assia Djebar, Fatima Mernissi, Hala Béji, Malika Mokkedem, Hawa Djabali, Leïla Sebbar, hlem Mosteghanemi, Fatima Bakhaï, et la liste est bien, bien longue... C'est autant de voix féminines qui foisonnent et dont la floraison des écrits assiègent l'univers de la littérature au Maghreb ; les écrits des femmes prennent l'aspect d'une incursion, voire d'un envahissement, d'une conquête des espaces de la vie intellectuelle jalousement réservés par la tradition et la coutume aux « esprits supérieurs et aux bien-pensants » uniquement.

Alors : Aggression ou transgression ? Violation ou rébellion ? Offensive ou insoumission ? Les interrogations et les lectures peuvent se multiplier indéfiniment. Mais, il est clair, qu'au Maghreb, la littérature féminine s'inscrit dans la problématique d'une écriture de la résistance et du combat ; une résistance toute pacifique, sereine et responsable, soumise au pouvoir impérieux des imaginaires et des mots dont l'objectif ultime est de se déployer dans le processus historique d'une quête de soi, d'une reconnaissance, d'une revalorisation et d'une présence digne dans les sociétés auxquelles appartiennent ces femmes.

Cet ouvrage réunit les textes de communications proposées au colloque international : « Ecriture féminine : réception, discours et représentations » organisé le 18 et 19 novembre 2007 à Oran.

Résumé : Ce livre nous entraîne dans l'univers des représentations inconscientes qui établissent l'infériorité des femmes comme une évidence. Il nous invite au voyage dans les sociétés les plus diverses où, à travers le monde et de l'Antiquité à nos jours, des a priori contribuent à maintenir et à justifier l'oppression des femmes. Les auteurs, toutes universitaires et chercheuses, nous font découvrir la force créatrice des représentations qui minimisent et dévalorisent les compétences féminines dans tous les domaines. Elles nous incitent à repenser les discours, fussent-ils scientifiques, et nous obligent à porter un regard critique sur les commentaires sexistes si prompts à saluer toute incursion féminine dans les lieux de pouvoir. Loin des doléances, les auteurs nous font partager la vitalité, l'humour, l'inventivité des femmes, leur lucidité et leurs vertus face aux préjugés légitimant leur statut inférieur. Les représentations sexuées varient tellement, d'une société à l'autre et d'une époque à l'autre, que leur caractère construit devient évident. Ainsi naît l'espoir de les modifier et de voir émerger le droit vital à la différence - sans discrimination - entre les hommes et les femmes.

Related Subjects: higher education | youth | universities | employment | living conditions | South Africa | public good | private good

Abstract : Around the world, more young people than ever before are attending university. Student numbers in South Africa have doubled since democracy and for many families, higher education is a route to a better future for their children. But alongside the overwhelming demand for higher education, questions about its purposes have intensified. Deliberations about the curriculum, culture and costing of public higher education abound from student activists, academics, parents, civil society and policy-makers. We know, from macro research, that South African graduates generally have good employment prospects. But little is known at a detailed level about how young people actually make use of their university experiences to craft their life courses. And even less is known about what happens to those who drop out. This accessible book brings together the rich life stories of 73 young people, six years after they began their university studies. It traces how going to university influences not only their employment options, but also nurtures the agency needed to chart their own way and to engage critically with the world around them. The book offers deep insights into the ways in which public higher education is both a private and public good, and it provides significant conclusions pertinent to anyone who works in – and cares about – universities.

Abstract : Studies of government and politics in Africa are dominated by a focus on the national and are typically set apart by anglophone, francophone and lusophone historical influences, with South Africa as an exception. This volume departs from a different set of questions and employs a novel approach in discussing them: cities in sub-Saharan Africa provide the pivot around which issues of policy and practice, planning and service delivery turn, at different scales and both from the top down as well as from the bottom up. Party politics, for example, is discussed at city level and urban security both within a state and a non-state context. The novelty of the approach is found in thematic rather than single-city chapters written by multiple authors each of whom displays depth knowledge of one of three or more cities treated in each case. This volume will interest scholars of African and of urban studies as well as urban policy-makers and practitioners

Related Subjects: Higher Education | apartheid | discrimination | undergraduate education | post-apartheid society
Summary : In what ways does access to undergraduate education have a transformative impact on people and societies? What conditions are required for this impact to occur? What are the pathways from an undergraduate education to the public good, including inclusive economic development?

These questions have particular resonance in the South African higher education context, which is attempting to tackle the challenges of widening access and improving completion rates in a system in which the segregations of the apartheid years are still apparent.

Higher education is recognised in core legislation as having a distinctive and crucial role in building post-apartheid society. Undergraduate education is seen as central to addressing skills shortages in South Africa. It is also seen to yield significant social returns, including a consistent positive impact on societal institutions and the development of a range of capabilities that have public, as well as private, benefits.

This book offers comprehensive contemporary evidence that allows for a fresh engagement with these pressing issues.

Written by some of the most eminent researchers from and on Africa, including the former Chairperson of the African Commission on Human and Peoples' Rights, it provides a detailed consideration of the situation in African prisons and examines how regional and international legal instruments have dealt with human rights concerns such as overcrowding, healthcare, pretrial detention and the treatment of women and children. Critically, the book reveals that there are processes and reforms underway across nations in Africa, and makes recommendations for strengthening and building on them.

Abstract : Imonti Modern seeks to recount a previously untold narrative of East London's Coloured and African locations after the Second World War and before these communities were ripped apart in the early 1960s by apartheid-era forced removals. Photographs, poems and oral accounts by former residents portray their public and cultural life in the city's locations on the East and West Banks of the Buffalo River. In their own words and through their own pictures, these stories reveal how African residents created their own styles and forms of dress, music, leisure and home-making to forge a unique urban culture. How they created and occupied public spaces at the beach, in the dance hall, on the rugby pitch, in the boxing ring and at church and school. How they forged new social identities from the forms of consumption and aspiration that they found in the surrounding city. It also shows how their popular imagination was fired by the cultural and political example of black America, which offered hope for greater civic participation in a modern, developing world.

46. Indigenous People in Africa: contestations, empowerment and group rights

ISBN: 9780798304641.

Related Subjects: indigenous population | Human Rights | Property Rights | Constitutional Reform | Africa | indigenous people | indigenous rights | transitional justice | environmental conservation | chronic trauma | state policy

Abstract : This volume is an attempt to provide this intersectional and reflexive space. The thinking behind the book began in Lamu in mid-2010. It was a time when growing community resistance emerged towards the Kenyan government's plan to build a second seaport under a trans-frontier infrastructural project known as the Lamu Port-South Sudan-Ethiopia Transport Corridor (LAPSSET). The editors agreed that a book that draws community activists, academics, researchers and policy makers into a discussion of the predicament of indigenous rights and development against the backdrop of the Endorois case was timely and needed. Assembled here are the original contributions of some of the leading contemporary thinkers in the area of indigenous and human rights in Africa. The book is an interdisciplinary effort with the single purpose of thinking through indigenous rights after the Endorois case but it is not a singular laudatory remark on indigenous life in Africa. The discussion begins by framing indigenous rights and claims to indigeneity as found in the Endorois decision and its related socio-political history. Subsequent chapters provide deeper contextual analysis by evaluating the tense relationship between indigenous peoples and the post-colonial nation-state. Overall, the book makes a peering and provocative contribution to the relational interests between state policies and the developmental intersections of indigeneity, indigenous rights, gender advocacy, environmental conservation, chronic trauma and transitional justice.

Related Subjects: education | special education | educational systems | Inklusive Pädagogik | Internationaler Vergleich | Aufsatzsammlung | inclusive education | educational equity

Abstract : Despite the impressive growth of inclusive education around the world, questions and considerations about equity have been neglected. This edited volume makes a major contribution to the field of inclusive education by analyzing equity concerns that have emerged from the implementation of inclusive education models in nine nations on five continents. The authors examine how disparate approaches to inclusive education are mediated by the official and implicit goals of public education; by access to intellectual, human, and material resources; and by collective understanding of and educational responses to sociocultural differences. Inclusive Education provides critical reviews of research on this important education reform movement, as well as a refined theoretical understanding of the ways equity is addressed. It also offers lessons for future policy and research that are mindful of equity.

Voices of the women are shared as they talk about how it feels to share their husband with many co-wives, and the book examines gender, their beliefs, social hierarchy, social changes and in particular the interface between the Maasai and colonials.

Abstract : Kenya, Uganda and Tanzania have minorities from the Indian sub-continent amongst their population. The East African Indians mostly reside in the main cities, particularly Nairobi, Dar es Salaam, Zanzibar, Mombasa, Kampala ; they can also be found in smaller urban centres and in the remotest of rural townships. They play a leading social and economic role as the)' work in business, manufacturing and the service industry, and make up a large proportion of the liberal professions. They are divided into multiple socio-religious communities, but united in a mutual feeling of meta-cultural identity.

This book aims at painting a broad picture of the communities of Indian origin in East Africa, striving to include changes that have occurred since the end of the 1980s. The different contributions explore questions of race and citizenship, national loyalties and cosmopolitan identities, local attachment and transnational networks. Drawing upon anthropology, history, sociology and demography, Indian Africa depicts a multifaceted population and analyses how the past and the present shape their sense of belonging, their relations with others, their professional and political engagement. This book is a must-read for contemporary researchers, students, policy practioners as well as the general reader.

Related Subjects: islam | state | Democracy | Religion | political participation | Islamic countries Politics and government

Abstract : Religious resurgence and democratization have been two of the most significant developments of the last quarter of the twentieth century. Frequently they work together; other times they are at odds. In the Muslim world, this relationship is of special importance because of the strength of the Islamic resurgence, and the intensity of Muslim demands for greater popular participation in political processes Esposito and Voll use six cases studies to look at the history of this relationship and the role played by new Islamic movements. At one end of the spectrum, Iran and Sudan represent two cases of militant, revolutionary Islam opposing the political system. In Algeria and Malaysia however, the new movements have been legally recognized and made part of the political process. The authors identify several important factors, such as the legality or illegality of the new Islamic movements and the degree to which they cooperate with existing rulers, as being key to understanding the success or failure of these movements. Still, the case studies prove that despite the commonalities, differing national contexts and identities give rise to differences in agenda and method. This broad spectrum of experience contains important lessons for understanding this complex and subtle relationship, and will also provide insight into the powerful forces of religion and democracy in a broader global context.

Pretoria: Africa Institute of South Africa, Trade Policy Training Centre in Africa (TRAPCA), 2014. - xvi-185 p.

ISBN: 9780798304771.

Related Subjects: land acquisition | Trade | Investment | Development Policy | Foreign Investment | land grab | green economy | agrarian revolution | foreign land acquisition | foreign land purchase | foreign direct investment | land rights.

Abstract : This book focuses on profiling, from both literature-based and primary research points of orientation, instances of land grabs and/or acquisitions with a focus on the implications of land grabs for trade, investment and development policy in Africa under the global green economy transition agenda. In many instances, case studies and examples paint a picture that could be of use to policy-makers. Overall, the book advocates a 'satisfy-satisfy' orientation when land deals are made, as well as total transparency from key actors, building grassroots negotiation capacity and awareness. To illustrate some of the emerging issues in terms of land-grabs, acquisition and their implications for trade, investment and development policies, the sixth Trade Policy Training Centre in Africa (trapca) conference took place in Arusha, Tanzania on 24 and 25 November 2011. The conference had two objectives: (1) to come up with concrete policy interventions and recommendations that would harness foreign investment in land on the continent; and (2) to publish this edited book of selected papers presented at the conference that met the rigorous specifications laid down by the editors and publishers. One of the major revelations to emerge from the Conference was that 'there is no vacant land in Africa'. In addition, participants took the view that land deals in Africa needed to be done on a 'satisfy-satisfy-satisfy' rather than a 'win-win-win' basis. This book is jointly published by trapca and the Africa Institute of South Africa (AISA).

Other Title: San and the Na Jaqna Conservancy, Tsumkwe District West, Namibia.

Related Subjects: Natural Resources | resources conservation | Nature Conservation | indigenous population | land reform | resources management | Namibia | indigenous rights

Abstract : Community-based natural resource management or CBNRM, with its attention to community participation, its call for de-centralization of rights to local resource users through democratic and equitable structures, and its potential to deliver benefits to local livelihoods and national conservation interests now forms the predominant strategy for rural development in the communal areas of Namibia. This framework is presumed by the Namibian government and international bodies concerned with conservation and development to deliver measurable and positive economic, environmental, and political results for the State and all of its citizens. For residents of many of the communal areas of Namibia the 'Conservancy' has become the primary avenue through which rural residents engage with development and conservation in various efforts to improve local livelihoods and to conserve natural resources. CBNRM has taken on particular form and significance for the San in Namibia. This book examines the current position of the San as marginalized indigenous peoples in Namibia. In doing so, it explores how CBNRM has become a nexus through which questions of indigeneity, conservation and development have come to bear on San communities. Focusing on the experiences of a group of predominantly San communities in the North-East of Namibia, the historical and contemporary situations of the San of the N[ame] Jaqna Conservancy and their engagement with CBNRM are examined. In looking to the future, this work seeks to understand what mechanisms and institutions give indigenous groups, such as the San, a foothold in the State and an avenue through which to navigate and shape their own modernity(ies). This work explores the modalities through which conservation comes together with interests of indigenous groups and how these groups deploy leverage gained through invoking conservation as discourse and practice. In examining San engagements with the Conservancy structures in N?a Jaqna, this study seeks answers not only to the question of what San engagements with CBNRM can tell us about the potential of the CBNRM framework itself for facilitating rural development and conservation, but also the question of what engagement with CBNRM can tell us about how the San of Namibia actively engage in rural development. The following work focuses not solely on how policies and governmental or non-governmental interventions have impacted San realities and life ways, but also the ways in which the San of N?a Jaqna have negotiated, impacted, and shaped these processes.

Summary : The contributions in this compilation on the emergence of a new global order through BRICS serve to illustrate the complexities inherent in the creation of such a coalition - alternatively referred to as a 'grouping', 'association' or 'forum' - with each country differently situated geo-politically as well as ideologically and culturally, and in some instances even in conflict with one another in matters of regional peace and security. The fact that there are important commonalities of converging interests, amongst others, the status of emerging economic powers and the furtherance of South-South cooperation as well as reforming global governance, cannot and should not hide complexities and contradictions. These are clearly apparent both within and between the BRICS countries. These diversities are also clear from the varied perspectives of the chapter authors in this compilation, which is why we have assembled this collection relatively loosely as a means of expressing our intellectual and analytic convergences and divergences within and across BRICS. Each chapter contributor writes from a different discipline, country and regional perspective, and it is this diversity that enriches the debate and conversation. As such, there remains enormous room for debate on the subject matter of this book and the diverse contributions open up the parameters of the debate even further. The aim is to ensure that scholars, commentators and practitioners continue to engage critically with theory and practice related to global multilateralism, and BRICS in particular.

Résumé : Le nombre de femmes tuées par les hommes est une des causes de mortalité les plus importantes sur cette planète. Le nombre de victimes est plusieurs fois supérieur à celui des morts dans toutes les guerres du vingtième siècle réunies. Les victimes se dénombrent lors des conflits, mais aussi dans la vie quotidienne. Les causes sont multiples, mais se résument trop souvent au simple fait que, pour un trop grand nombre d'individus, la vie d'une femme et sa dignité valent moins que celles d'un homme. Cette situation est tout simplement intolérable. Nous avons essayé, dans ce livre, de rassembler les faits. Alors que nous avions initialement le projet d'écrire un livre sur les aspects du sexocide qui sont directement liés à notre mission, nous sommes rapidement arrivés à la conclusion que cela revenait par trop à réduire notre approche. Les études qui examinent en détail les multiples aspects spécifiques d'un problème sont évidemment très importantes. Toutefois, une vue exhaustive du sujet est fort nécessaire. Les données doivent être vues dans leur totalité pour que nous puissions commencer à comprendre ce qui est en train de se passer. Nous espérons que les faits, les données et les analyses rassemblés dans ce volume aideront à faire réagir la communauté internationale, l'humanité et chacun d'entre nous. Il ne peut y avoir de place pour la complaisance en face de massacres, de mutilations, de viols, de déchéance et de discrimination sociale.

Résumé : L'Afrique noire est mal partie, pronostiquait sombrement René Dumont il y a trente ans. Et de fait : famines, épidémies et guerres civiles ravagent un continent qui ne parvient guère à décoller économiquement, en proie à la corruption, au pillage de ses ressources et à l'exode de ses élites. Pourtant, l'Afrique ne manque pas d'atouts : ici et là, les vieux dictateurs sont congédiés, l'exigence démocratique s'installe. Des médiations se créent pour mettre un terme aux conflits. A l'ONU, le continent apprend à être une force autonome.

Une nouvelle conscience africaine émerge. Des écrivains, des chanteurs et des musiciens, des plasticiens, des cinéastes portent la voix de l'Afrique dans le monde. Sans concessions ni parti pris, c'est cette nouvelle Afrique, dans la multiplicité de ses aspects, que ce livre donne à voir. Il propose une synthèse sur chacun des Etats africains, évoque les principales figures politiques et les grandes étapes de l'histoire contemporaine, offre un tableau des conflits, étudie les grands faits de société (religions, corruption, villes), présente les principaux partenaires du continent, les enjeux économiques, sociaux et culturels.

Des cartes, les " éphémérides " de RFI, qui jalonnent un demi-siècle d'actualité, des chronologies, un choix de textes fondateurs et un index détaillé complètent ce panorama d'un continent en mouvement.

Abstract : This book explores from various perspectives how the literature of the northern region of Nigeria has promoted the ideology of integration and societal resurgence. Through the diverse cultural productions from this very heterogenous socio-political region, researchers have dissected the portrayals and characterisations of ideologies which foster harmony among the people who speak a multitude of languages and have an array of cultural practices. These contributions bring to the fore the multiple roles that both indigenous literary productions and those adapted from foreign elements have played in realising social and cultural integration and advancing collective values of the people of Northern Nigeria.

This collection of essays is the result of a selection of scholarly contributions to two national conferences on Literature on Northern Nigeria held at the Kwara State University, Malete in 2015 and 2016.

Abstract : Ellen Ndeshi Namhila is intrigued by the question: Why can the National Archives of Namibia respond to genealogical enquiries of Whites in a matter of minutes with finding estate records of deceased persons, while similar requests from Blacks cannot be served? Not satisfied with the sweeping statement that this is the result of colonialism and apartheid, she follows the track of so-called "Native estates" through legislation, record creation and disposal, records management and administrative neglect, authorised and unauthorised destruction, transfer and appraisal, selective processing, and (almost) final amnesia. Eventually she discovers over 11,000 forgotten surviving African estate records - but also evidence for the destruction of many others. And she demonstrates the potential of these records to interpret the lives of those who otherwise appear in history only as statistics - records which were condemned to destruction by colonial archivists stating they had "little research value and no functional value." This study of memory against forgetting is a call to post-colonial archives to re-visit their holdings and the systemic colonial bias that continues to haunt them. This is the revised version of Ellen Namhila's 2015 doctoral thesis published at the University of Tampere, Finland.

Summary : In the last decade, South Africa has made significant progress in reducing child and maternal mortality rates. Although progress has been made in improving levels of maternal and child morbidity and mortality, it is important to indicate that data used are based on varied sources and systems that sometimes yield conflicting data. South Africa has a well-established statistics system. However, not all deaths are registered and the quality of the cause-of-death information is often inadequate. The Improvement of Maternal and Child Morbidity and Mortality Surveillance (MIMMS) project was initiated to address challenges, bottlenecks and short comings within the surveillance system that compromise the efficiency and effectiveness of the system. Monitoring Maternal and Child Morbidity and Mortality in South Africa is a critical resource that gives insight to the current state of the existing surveillance system and how to strength strategies for monitoring maternal and child morbidity and mortality.

Abstract : Nation, Power and Dissidence in Third Generation Nigerian Poetry in English is a theoretical and analytical survey of the poetry that emerged in Nigeria in the 1980s. Hurt into poetry, the poets collectively raise aesthetics of resistance that dramatises the nationalist imagination bridging the gap between poetry and politics in Nigeria. The emerging generation of poetic voices raises an outcry against the repressive military regimes of the 1980s and 1990s. Ingrained in the tradition of protest literature in Africa, the third-generation poetry is presented here as part of the cultural struggles that unseat military despotism and envisage a democratic society.

Abstract : The 2017 electoral cycle is one of the most remarkable in Kenya's political and electoral history. Not only were the scheduled general elections held on 8th August 2017 in line with the five-year electoral calendar, but also the Presidential Election results were annulled by the Supreme Court and a Fresh Presidential Election ordered and conducted on 26th October 2018. Thus, apart from the usual six elections that ordinarily constitute the general elections, an additional presidential election was scheduled and conducted, thus making the 2017 electoral cycle unprecedentedly characterized by seven elections. The 2017 electoral cycle was a protracted and unrelenting process for many electoral stakeholders. It was also historical given that a record 14,523 candidates out of 15,082 aspirants were cleared to participate in all the elections. The 2017 electoral cycle also rekindled the memories of the 2013 electoral cycle as the 2017 presidential elections yet again pitted the incumbent President Uhuru Kenyatta against Hon. Raila Odinga, as the top two favorite candidates, as was the case in the previous elections, thus taking the character of an epic electoral grand rematch between the two.

Related Subjects: schools | primary education | learning | indigenour population | -- Namibia -- Eastern Bushmanland | traditonal knowledge transmission

Abstract : This book describes the Nyae Nyae Village Schools, an innovative and unique mother-tongue education initiative set in north-eastern Namibia. Inspired by the optimism of Independence, the project was designed in close consultation with the Ju'hoansi community in the early 1990s. Drawing upon their traditional knowledge transmission strategies, and initiated in a supportive political environment, the project exemplified 'best practice.' During the following two decades, the Village Schools have transitioned from a donor-supported 'project' to government schools, and have received much attention and support from donors, civil society organisations, researchers, and others. However, the students still do not seem to succeed in the mainstream schools. Why is this? Based on long-term field-work in the region, including interviews with Nyae Nyae residents over several years and work with involved organisations, the book addresses this question. Contextualising the Village Schools within post-Independence Namibia, southern African history and the global indigenous rights movement, it examines the enormous paradoxes that schooling presents for the Nyae Nyae community. 'Owners of Learning' is the English translation of the Ju'hoansi word for 'teacher' and it serves to highlight a fundamental question - to whom does education belong?

Abstract : Parading respectability: The cultural and moral aesthetics of the Christmas Bands Movement in the Western Cape, South Africa is an intimate and incisive portrait of the Christmas Bands Movement in the Western Cape of South Africa. Drawing on her own on background as well as her extended research study period during which she became a band member and was closely involved in its day-to-day affairs, the author, Dr Sylvia Bruinders, documents this centuries-old expressive practice of ushering in the joy of Christmas through music by way of a social history of the coloured communities. In doing so, she traces the slave origins of the Christmas Bands Movement, as well as how the oppressive and segregationist injustices of both colonialism and apartheid, together with the civil liberties afforded in the South African Constitution (1996) after the country became a democracy in 1994 have shaped the movement.

ISBN: 9780798304528.

Related Subjects: leadership | Economic Recovery | globalization | International Relations | Economic and Social Development | Africa's renewal | Africa's advancement | pan-africanism | African renaissance

Abstract : This book outlines perspectives of emerging and established African scholars on what one could describe as the debate on leadership and the articulation of the life of the mind in Africa's socio-economic, political and cultural life from the time of independence to date. The papers contained in the book cover the following thematic areas: Alternative Leadership Paradigm for Africa's Advancement; African Perspectives on Globalisation and international relations; Pan-Africanism and the African Renaissance; Scientific, Technological and Cultural Dimensions of African Development.

The first section deals with alternative leadership paradigms for Africa's advancement. It also debates the 'thin line' separating management studies from leadership studies and untangles the hermeneutic complexities in the term 'leadership'. Section two examines among other things, the crucial challenge of globalisation and public ethics and others African perspectives. The section also interrogates the current complexities and credibility deficits in the global governance of trade and towards the end engages philosophical questions about conscience and consciousness in African development and progress. The debates in section three continue to section four and focus on the overall issues of language and liberation, the significance of Multi, Inter and Trans-Disciplinary Approaches in the analysis of the African continent, appropriate indigenous paradigms for promoting the African renaissance as well as a series of debates on the meaning and prospects of regional integration in Africa's renewal. This provides just a snapshot of a very wide ranging and interesting debate contained in the publication.

Résumé : Ce livre est la première tentative d'envergure consacrée à l'examen du pilotage des politiques publiques au Sénégal entre 1960 et 2012. Il propose sur la question des regards croisés d'universitaires et d'experts de l'administration publique centrale, notamment de ceux du Centre d'études des politiques de développement (CEPD), qui est le pôle central de réflexion du ministère de l'Économie et des Finances. Les contributions réunies dans ce volume analysent, sur la longue durée, des séquences importantes du processus complexe de la construction de l'État. Elles dévoilent les enjeux et les contraintes de la gestion des politiques publiques, tout en mettant à nu les origines, mais aussi les manifestations, des déséquilibres structurels croissants de la fin des années 1970. Elles se concentrent ensuite sur les programmes d'ajustement structurel, en examinant leurs résultats dans certains secteurs. Elles montrent ainsi de quelle manière les rigidités structurelles observées durant la période antérieure ont été traitées. Elles reconstituent également le mode de gouvernance des institutions et des politiques publiques observé après l'alternance politique de 2000. Ce volume met en évidence l'incidence du politique sur la gestion des structures administratives ou économiques et caractérise la capacité du gouvernement à gérer ou à mettre en œuvre les réformes envisagées pendant la période examinée. Il offre aux décideurs des éclairages novateurs sur les différentes facettes des politiques publiques et sur la qualité de la gouvernance des institutions. Ce livre constitue donc un précieux outil pour tous ceux qui, à des degrés divers, s'intéressent à l'avenir du Sénégal et à celui des pays confrontés aux mêmes problèmes de développement.

Abstract : Pio Gama Pinto was born in Kenya on March 31, 1927. He was assassinated in Nairobi on February 24, 1965. In his short life, he became a symbol of anti-colonial and anti-imperialist struggles in Kenya and India. He was actively involved in Goa's struggle against Portuguese colonialism and in Mau Mau during Kenya's war of independence. For this, he was detained by the British colonial authorities in Kenya from 1954-59. His contribution to the struggle for liberation for working people spanned two continents - Africa and Asia. And it covered two phases of imperialism - colonialism in Kenya and Goa and neo-colonialism in Kenya after independence. His enemies saw no way of stopping the intense, lifelong struggle waged by Pinto - except through an assassin's bullets. But his contribution, his ideas, and his ideals are remembered and upheld even today by people active in liberation struggles.

This book does not aim or claim to be a comprehensive record on Pio Gama Pinto, just the beginning of the long journey necessary to record the history of Kenya from an anti-imperialist perspective. It introduces readers to voices of many people who have written about Pinto to build up as clear a picture of Pinto as possible. In that spirit, it seeks to make history available to those whose story it is - people of Kenya, Africa and progressive people around the world.

Summary: "In this revealing new book, Bøås and Dunn explore the phenomenon of 'autochthony' - literally 'son of the soil' - in African politics. In contemporary Africa, questions concerning origin are currently among the most crucial and contested issues in political life, directly relating to the politics of place, belonging, identity and contested citizenship. Thus, land claims and autochthony disputes are the hallmark of political crises in many places on the African continent. Examining the often complex reasons behind this recent rise of autochthony across a number of high-profile case studies - including the Democratic Republic of Congo, Côte d'Ivoire, Liberia, and Kenya - this is an essential book for anyone wishing to understand the impact of this crucial issue on contemporary African politics and conflicts."--Publisher's website.

Abstract : As the population of Africa increasingly converts to Christianity, the church has stepped up its involvement in secular affairs revolving around the transition to democracy in nations such as Zambia, Zimbabwe, and South Africa. Comparative in approach, the author analyzes patterns of church-state relations in various sub-Saharan countries, and contends that churches become more active and politically prominent when elements and organizations of civil society are repressed by political factors or governing bodies, providing services to maintain the well-being of civil society in the absence of those organizations being repressed. The author concludes, that once political repression subsides, churches tend to withdraw from a confrontation with the state and their political role becomes unclear. This unique book advances the idea that in pluralist Africa, churches should focus their influence and resources on nurturing the fragile multiparty democracies and promoting peace and reconciliation. In his analysis of church-state relations in sub-Saharan Africa, Phiri shows how churches are drawn into confrontation with the state by the repression of civil society and that once civil society is liberated, direct church-state confrontation diminishes. In South Africa, churches led by figures such as Bishop Desmond Tutu assumed a major role after nationalist movements such as Nelson Mandela's African National Congress were banned and their leaders jailed. In Zimbabwe, the church assumed a confrontational role in 1965 after political movements were banned and their leaders exiled. In Zambia, churches became confrontational when the single-party rule repressed all opposition and supported the rise of the prodemocracy movement that ended Kenneth Kaunda's twenty-seven-year rule. Examining these situations and others in different parts of Africa, Phiri illuminates the major issues and conflicts and suggests ways in which the church can continue to help promote smooth transitions to democracy.

Abstract : Most African national economies depend on the exploitation of both renewable and non-renewable natural resources for development. Conventional and unconventional exploitation of natural resources has left negative carbon footprints. This has also degraded hotspots across the African continent, impacting negatively on people and the environment. A Green Economy offers the continent the opportunity to achieve sustained economic development devoid of environmental degradation and inefficient utilisation of natural resources. This book, Promoting Green Economy, explores issues affecting the socio-economic development of the continent and focuses on Africa's need for a green economy. With chapters written by seasoned authors from academia and industry across the continent, the book examines the challenges of sustainable management of Africa's natural resources and recommends the need for the continent to transit towards green economy as this can provide opportunities for minimising environmental footprints of all economic activities. The book calls on the commitment of the public and private sectors to the development of appropriate green economy policies and regulatory frameworks to promote inclusive growth.

Résumé : "A Brazzaville, la nature prodigue une telle magnificence quelle détourne d'abord l'attention de ce que les colonisateurs ont bâti là, une ville blanche largement étalée, flanquée de deux villes noires construites à chacune de ses extrémités... J'eus très vite la certitude que les villes noires n'étaient pas des périphéries à tenir en oubli, des agglomérations qui enfermaient en leurs limites une population de déracinés à utiliser et à cantonner selon la règle de chacun à sa place. J'y voyais au contraire un nouveau monde social en devenir, un milieu créatif où s'expérimentaient des relations inédites, où se manifestait la confrontation conflictuelle du traditionnel et du moderne." (Conjugaisons, 1997). Ainsi s'exprimait, à propos de Poto-Poto et Baongo, les deux "Brazzavilles noires" qu'il arpente en 1948, Georges Balandier, l'un des anthropologues et sociologues africanistes de langue française les plus connus aujourd'hui. Auteur notamment de : Afrique ambiguë (1957), Anthropologie Politique (1967), Sens et Puissance (1971), Le Pouvoir sur scènes (1980), Le détour : pouvoir et modernité (1985), et surtout de la Sociologie des Brazzavilles noires (1955) ainsi que de la célèbre Sociologie actuelle de l'Afrique noire (1955), dans laquelle il a livré, entre autres, sa lecture critique de la "situation coloniale". Trois ans après sa disparition, ce "retour" aux sources congolaises de ses travaux rassemble, ici, les contributions présentées lors du colloque qui lui a été dédié, à Brazzaville en 2018, par des universitaires locaux et par leurs collègues venus d'ailleurs. ## 80. Rethinking securities in an emergent technoscientific new world order: retracing the contours for Africa's hi-jacked futures

MAWERE, Munyaradzi ; NHEMACHENA, Artwell, ed.

Related Subjects: new technology | social welfare | new international economic order | Ethnicity | disability | International Politics | globalization | Religion | youth | Democracy | Africa | emergent technology | security studies | human insecurity | social networking | social responsibility | emergent digital media

Summary : The emergent technoscientific New World Order is being legitimised through discourses on openness and inclusivity. The paradox is that openness implies vulnerability and insecurities, particularly where closure would offer shelter. While some actors, including NGOs, preach openness of African societies, Africans clamour for protection, restitution and restoration. Africans struggle for ownership and access to housing, for national, cultural, religious, economic, and social belonging that would offer them the necessary security and protection, including protection from the global vicissitudes and matrices of power. In the presence of these struggles, to presuppose openness would be to celebrate vulnerability and insecurities. This book examines ways in which emergent technologies expose Africans and, more generally, peoples of the global south to political, economic, social, cultural and religious shocks occasioned by the coloniality of the global matrices of power. It notes that there is the use -- by global elites -- of technologies to incite postmodern revolutions designed to compound the vicissitudes and imponderables in the already unsettled lives of people north and south. Particularly targeted by these technologies are African and other governments that do not cooperate in the fulfilment of the interests of the hegemonic global elites. The book is handy to students and practitioners in security studies, African studies, development studies, global studies, policy studies, and political science.

Abstract : This book is the result of a long-term cooperation between French and East African scholars and universities under the aegis of the French Institute of Research in Africa (IFRA-Nairobi). It presents the main results of the research program Cooperation for University and Scientific Research (CORUS): Mountains and Small and Medium Cities in East Africa: Environmental Management, Flows of People and Resources, funded by the French Ministry of Foreign Affairs and supported by IFRA-Nairobi. The specific subject is to rethink the development of the East African mountains in relation to the fast-growing towns and cities that surround them. Three East African mountains were chosen: Mount Kenya, Mount Elgon (Ugandan side) and Uporoto Mountains (Tanzania). Comparisons are included, especially with Mount Kilimanjaro, which has been studied in previous books and programs (e.g. Kilimanjaro: Mountain, Memory and Modernity, Mkuki na Nyota, Dar es Salaam, 2006). The authors are East African (Tanzania, Uganda, Kenya) and French scholars, most of them geographers. Made from 12 contributions, this book focuses on a recent change in those mountains: a growing urbanization which shapes new mountain systems. This phenomenon, which is actually a major upheaval, is the focal point of the book, giving rise to the question: what are the links between Rural-Urban evolution in such contexts? What are the impacts on livelihoods and development? This book, covering social and environmental scientific issues relating to Rural-Urban nature, is the first of its kind for African mountains.

Résumé : Cette étude porte sur la sécurité par le bas au Burkina Faso, notamment les manières dont les citoyens perçoivent et vivent les défis de sécurité. A travers une entrée par la commune, elle s'intéresse à l'interface entre les enjeux locaux et les insécurités multiples : attaques armées, terrorisme, crime organisé, délinquances, exactions et bavures des forces de sécurité, pauvreté, insécurité alimentaire, etc. L'étude met les nouvelles initiatives de sécurité (Forum national de sécurité, la Force conjointe du G5 Sahel, groupes d'autodéfense, etc.) en perspective, car elle vise à comprendre les réalités et les « vues et vécues » des acteurs socio-politiques locaux et des citoyens ordinaires.

L'étude est le fruit d'un travail collectif. Une équipe d'anthropologues a d'abord mené les recherches de terrain dans 13 communes burkinabè pour ensuite analyser les matériaux ethnographiques afin de rédiger le présent document ensemble. Les perspectives citoyennes de sécurité, l'ancien régime, la crise malienne, et la criminalité transfrontalière, sont analysées à côté des perceptions populaires de l'État burkinabè. L'émergence des groupes d'auto-défense, particulièrement les Dozos, Koglweogos et Roughas, est contextualisée, suivie d'une analyse des initiatives locales pour la sécurité, telles que l'engagement contre la radicalisation et la mobilisation des femmes. Comment vivre les insécurités – notamment les questions de sécurité alimentaire, de chômage et d'emploi et gérer la peur – est analysé en détail sur la base des connaissances approfondies des terrains de recherche.

Summary: "This volume focuses on the cultural memory and mediation of the 1964 Zanzibar revolution, analyzing its continuing reverberations in everyday life. The revolution constructed new conceptions of community and identity, race and cultural belonging, as well as instituting different ideals of nationhood, citizenship, sovereignty. As the commemoration of the 50th anniversary of the revolution revealed, the official versions of events have shifted significantly over time and the legacy of the uprising is still deeply contested. In these debates, the question of Zanzibari identity remains very much at stake : Who exactly belongs in the islands and what historical processes brought them there ? What are the boundaries of the nation, and who can claim to be an essential part of this imagined and embodied community ? Political belonging and power are closely intertwined with these issues of identity and history--raising intense debates and divisions over precisely where Zanzibar should be situated within the national order of things in a postcolonial and interconnected world. Attending to narratives that have been overlooked, ignored, or relegated to the margins, the authors of these essays do not seek to simply define the revolution or to establish its ultimate meaning. Instead, they seek to explore the continuing echoes and traces of the revolution fifty years on, reflected in diverse memories, media, and monuments. Inspired by interdisciplinary perspectives from anthropology, history, cultural studies, and geography, these essays foreground critical debates about the revolution, often conducted sotto voce and located well off the official stage--attending to long silenced questions, submerged doubts, rumors and secrets, or things that cannot be said."-- Back cover.

Related Subjects: mining | mineral exploration | mineral resources | mining development | Social aspects | South Africa. -- History -- 21st century | mineral industries

Summary: "The Future of Mining in South Africa: Sunset or Sunrise? is the first of its kind in South Africa. The book aims to catalyse change by gathering together fragmented views into unifying conversations about the future of mining in South Africa and other countries across the mineral-dependent globe. It covers issues like the potential of platinum to spur industrialization, land and dispossession in the platinum belt, the roles of the state and capital in mineral development, mining in the era of the Fourth Industrial Revolution, the experiences of women in and affected by mining since late 19th century, mine worker organizing: history and lessons and how post-mine rehabilitation can be tackled. It was inspired not only by an appreciation of South Africa's extensive mineral endowments, but also by a realisation that, while the South African mining industry performs relatively well on many technical indicators, its management of broader social issues leaves much to be desired. It needs to be deliberated whether the mining industry can play as critical a role going forward as it did in the evolution of the country's economy."--Publisher's description.

Abstract : The first of its kind for any sport in South Africa: a cricket love story of epic dimensions, full of sometimes shocking details. Cricket and Conquest fundamentally revises long-established foundational narratives of early South African cricket, reaching beyond whites-only mainstream histories to integrate at every stage and in every region the experiences of black, as well as women, players. In this book and its sequels, the authors reveal how racism came to be built into the very fabric of South African cricket's culture and traditions, and how the sport was tied to the broader historical processes that shaped the country.

Abstract : Divided Country explains how segregation and apartheid became entrenched in a unique way in cricket in South Africa between 1915 and the 1950s. While the rest of the cricket world increasingly rubbed out old dividing lines, South Africa reinforced them until seven different South Africas existed at the same time in cricket. Each ran leagues and provincial competitions and chose national teams. Divided Country attempts to paint an entirely new picture of cricket in South Africa during a crucial and complex period. Without knowing how apartheid in cricket unfolded one cannot even begin to understand the journey the country has travelled since the 1950s, and how, slowly, painstakingly, the cricket unity we take for granted today was struggled for and constructed.

Abstract : In recent years, Ethiopia has experienced a rapid expansion of Khat production, marketing and consumption that has put her in a double bind. Her economy is becoming increasingly dependent on the production and export of Khat, the same way a significant section of her population is getting progressively enticed into its unbridled consumption. Khat abuse/addiction has led to serious and manifold socioeconomic problems including those relating to health. In spite of the fact that several millions of her citizens are preoccupied with Khat in the capacities of growers, traders, and chewers, the country has no clear policy to guide its production, distribution or use. The study, the findings of which are reported in this volume, focused on the unravelling the intertwined socioeconomic impacts of Khat consumption and addiction, and culminates with the identification of feasible national-level strategies and policy responses to the Khat conundrum.

FOURIE, Frederick C. v. N; SKINNER, Caroline; eds.

Cape Town, South Africa : HSRC Press, 2018. - xxii-490 p.

ISBN: 9780796925343.

Related Subjects: Informal Sector | Economics | employment creation | Poverty | South Africa

Abstract : While the informal sector is the ‘forgotten’ sector in many ways, it provides livelihoods, employment and income for about 2.5 million workers and business owners. One in every six South Africans who work, work in the informal sector. Almost half of these work in firms with employees; these firms provide about 850 000 paid jobs – almost twice direct employment in the mining sector. The annual entry of new enterprises is quite high, as is the number of enterprises that grow their employment. There is no shortage of business initiative and desire to grow. However, obstacles and constraints cause hardship and failure, pointing to the need for well-designed policies to enable and support the sector, rather than suppress it. The same goes for formalisation. Recognising the informal sector as an integral part of the economy is a crucial first step towards instituting a ‘smart’ policy approach. This volume is strongly evidence- and data-driven, with substantial quantitative contributions combined with qualitative findings – suitable for an era of evidence-based policy-making – and utilises several disciplinary perspectives.

Abstract : "To be or not to be is an analysis of linguistic, cultural, political, economic and social factors, which explain the intricate root causes of conflicts which have ravished Sudan. It stands in stark contrast to the dominant simplification and distortions which have come to typify presentations of the region. Central to the book is an unapologetic explanation of Arabization; which often is portrayed as individual choices of religious loyalty, but, in fact, masks an intentional power-system which viciously corrupts Afrikan identities. By highlighting the detrimental complexities of manipulation, geopolitics, identity confusion and cultural imperialism, Hashim has not only written an authoritative book about Sudan, but also presented a comprehensive case study that all of Afrika must learn from. Rarely are we presented with such a vigorous inside-view to an area of Afrika which once was held in the highest civilizational esteem, but has been reduced to an ideological field of Arab-led terror, massacres and disintegration."

Related Subjects: political leadership | democracy | traditional practices | South Africa | political landscape | traditional leadership | chieftancy | legitimacy

Summary : Post-1994, South Africa's traditional leaders have fought for recognition, and positioned themselves as major players in the South African political landscape. Yet their role in a democracy is contested, with leaders often accused of abusing power, disregarding human rights, expropriating resources and promoting tribalism. Some argue that democracy and traditional leadership are irredeemably opposed and cannot co-exist. Meanwhile, shifts in the political economy of the former bantustans - the introduction of platinum mining in particular - have attracted new interests and conflicts to these areas, with chiefs often designated as custodians of community interests. This edited volume explores how chieftancy is practised, experienced and contested in contemporary South Africa. It includes case studies of how those living under the authority of chiefs, in a modern democracy, negotiate or resist this authority in their respective areas. Chapters in this book are organised around three major sites of contest: leadership, land and law.

Related Subjects : water resources | food security | Nutrition | social justice | Agriculture | water management | irrigation | water resources development

Abstract : This book is the first comprehensive effort to bring together Water, Food Security and Nutrition (FSN) in a way that goes beyond the traditional focus on irrigated agriculture. Apart from looking at the role of water and sanitation for human well-being, it proposes alternative and more locally appropriate ways to address complex water management and governance challenges from the local to global levels against a backdrop of growing uncertainties. The authors challenge mainstream supply-oriented and neo-Malthusian visions that argue for the need to increase the land area under irrigation in order to feed the world's growing population. Instead, they argue for a reframing of the debate concerning production processes, waste, food consumption and dietary patterns whilst proposing alternative strategies to improve water and land productivity, putting the interests of marginalized and disenfranchised groups upfront. The book highlights how accessing water for FSN can be challenging for small-holders, vulnerable and marginalized women and men, and how water allocation systems and reform processes can negatively affect local people's informal rights. The book argues for the need to improve policy coherence across water, land and food and is original in making a case for strengthening the relationship between the human rights to water and food, especially for marginalized women and men. It will be of great interest to practitioners, students and researchers working on water and food issues.

Abstract : This eagerness may perhaps have risen from the sense of urgency harbored by many actors and caused by the disappointingly insufficient volume of state-of-the-art research that currently supports the advanced level of progress in the sub-region's process of regional integration. Indeed, there is general consensus that research must quickly respond to, and sometimes even lead, policymaking to contribute to its success. The manuscripts that served as the basis for the discussions also helped revisit many commonly-held policy views through the scrutiny of rigorous scientific inquiry and therefore strengthened the factual foundations of regional policy undertakings. This no doubt enhances the reliance of policymaking on research and contributes to widespread consensus on what needs to be done. As a result, the combined contributions of all the authors provide a fair degree of achievement in the reconstruction of the jigsaw puzzle that is regional integration in West Africa and help formulate a comprehensive and coherent growth-inducing and socially acceptable integrative design. The present book seeks to provide answers on many facets of the challenges related to region-wide policymaking. Through its 13 chapters it aims to cover a wide spectrum of policy issues of the day and to display a sense of vision that spans the entire planning horizon of most stakeholders. It opens with a chapter that reviews the impact of the recent global financial crisis on the economies of the sub-region, and a thorough examination of the economic shocks that are characteristic of the economies of West African Monetary Zone (WAMZ) countries five non-CFA countries...

Related Subjects: REYNOLDS, Pamela | anthropology | childhood | labour | family | resistance | administration of justice | war | sexuality | development of conscience | relationship

Summary : The Ways We Stretch Toward One Another is a collection of essays on the work of Pamela Reynolds. The essays take cues from Reynolds' decades-long contributions to the field of anthropology in different ways. The authors weave Reynolds' groundbreaking scholarship on the anthropology of childhood—of labour, of family, of resistance, justice, war and suffering—through the terms of their own work, in places and contexts that may at first appear quite distant from the villages of Zimbabwe and townships of South Africa that feature in Reynolds' ethnographies. The Ways We Stretch Toward One Another is about anthropologists stretching in thought and practice toward one another, between generations, toward the people encountered in the field, through worlds entered and past, and how, in turn, these worlds lean into our own. At the core of each essay is a question about how we learn, how we pass lessons on, how we assume the mantle of anthropology for understanding the contemporary world—something that often requires folding intellectual friendships into the tools of our practice. The Ways We Stretch Toward One Another demonstrates how a master anthropologist has come to shape the priorities of others, in terms that are both creative and aware. Abstract : The slave trade, the conquest of the Americas and the invasion of Africa have deeply transformed the relations between Europeans and other groups. The jump from difference to superiority and racial hierarchy was so swift that it led to the moral collapse of Europe and North America. By shifting the devaluation of so-called 'inferior' beings from non-Whites to non-Aryans, Nazism committed the unforgivable crime of bringing into the heart of the European world a ferocity up to then reserved for other continents. In this book, White Ferocity : The Genocides of Non-Whites and Non-Aryans from 1492 to Date, Plumelle-Urbe investigates and demonstrates, with harrowing evidence and analyses, how Europeans justified the destruction of other peoples as unavoidable based on the officially declared belief of others being inferior.

Related Subjects: Land use | land reform | Literature | whites -- Ethnic identity | Zimbabwe | land invasion | ethnic identity | white farmers | land reform in literature

Summary : The post-2000 period in Zimbabwe saw the launch of a fast track land reform programme, resulting in a flurry of accounts from white Zimbabweans about how they saw the land, the land invasions, and their own sense of belonging and identity. In White Narratives, Irikidzayi Manase engages with this fervent output of texts seeking definition of experiences, conflicts and ambiguities arising from the land invasions. He takes us through his study of texts selected from the memoirs, fictional and non-fictional accounts of white farmers and other displaced white narrators on the post-2000 Zimbabwe land invasions, scrutinising divisions between white and black in terms of both current and historical ideology, society and spatial relationships. He examines how the revisionist politics of the Zimbabwean government influenced the politics of identities and race categories during the period 2000-2008, and posits some solutions to the contestations for land and belonging.

Abstract : Young Families: Gender, Sexuality and Care draws together unique and compelling essays about the contexts of early childbearing, a topic that is now taken for granted. It draws on empirical data, multi-level approaches and inter-disciplinary perspectives on the dynamics that underpin young people's experiences of being pregnant, having a child and caring for the child. The book explores the contexts in which young families are constituted and shaped along with the kinds of social relationships and communities of care that early childbearing creates (or in some instances destroys). It shows the entanglement of gender, sexuality, race, age and class in the formation of young families and its effects on caring practices. This book draws together unique and compelling accounts that address a gap in the existing literature on families in South Africa while also providing an understanding of the diversity of young South African families. Young Families will be of interest and of benefit to those in the fields of Women and Gender studies, Anthropology, Education, Sociology, History and Demography.
